If you're dealing with an unresolved problem with Frontier, escalation is the process of moving your case to higher-level support so it can be reviewed more thoroughly and resolved faster. Here's a clear and unique step-by-step guide to help you do it effectively.

1. Start with Standard Customer Support

Begin by contacting Frontier's regular customer service team through phone or chat. Clearly explain your issue and share:

- Booking or itinerary number
- Payment confirmation details
- A short summary of the problem

Stay specific and avoid unnecessary details so the agent can quickly understand your case.

2. Ask for a Supervisor When Needed

If the first agent cannot resolve your issue, politely request escalation to:

- A supervisor
- A senior support representative
- A specialized resolution team

This is often the fastest way to move complex issues forward.

---

3. Keep Your Records Organized

Before escalating, make sure you have all supporting documents ready:

- Flight or booking confirmation
- Payment receipts or invoices
- Screenshots of errors or issues
- Previous chat or email history

Well-documented cases are usually processed faster.

4. Use Dedicated Escalation Contact Support

For urgent matters or unresolved disputes, you can contact escalation assistance directly:

☎ +1-877-622-0707 (US/USA)
☎ ++1-877-622-0707 (US/USA)

Clearly state your issue and request that your case be forwarded to the escalation or resolution department of Frontier Airlines.

---

5. Request a Case or Reference Number

Always ask for a case ID after escalation. This helps you:

- Track progress
- Follow up easily
- Ensure accountability from support teams

---

6. Use Digital Support Channels

You can also escalate issues using Frontier’s:

- Mobile app chat support
- Online help center
- Email support system

Many users find app-based escalation faster because documents can be uploaded instantly.

7. External Escalation Options (If Unresolved)

If your issue still isn’t resolved after multiple attempts, you can consider:

- Filing a complaint with the Better Business Bureau (BBB)
- Posting through official social media support channels
- Initiating a credit card dispute (only as a last step)

---

8. Issues Commonly Sent for Escalation

Escalation is typically required for:

- Refund delays or denials
- Unexpected flight cancellations
- Billing or overcharge disputes
- Booking system errors

---

9. Support Availability

Frontier support is available 24/7, so you can escalate issues at any time:
